

I do not want the FCC to change the Indiana No Call law. If an individual state wants to enact their own law restricting telemarketing let them. I think the FCC should enact its own privacy regulations but the states should have the right to build on those regulations and make the rules more strict if the people of that state want more restrictions.